BE PREPARED FOR ANYTHING

It is predicted that driving this Labor Day Weekend will be heavy despite the increase in gas prices. Whether your travels takes you on a last minute vacation or shorter trips in the local area, the key to your safety is to ng.

Here's the facts

need not fall prey to injury or death at the hands of an errant dr

Remember…there is a possibility of facing a pair of headlights on your side of the road when rounding a curve or you could have a by-chance meeting at an intersection with a speeding car running a red light. You see, CRM does apply off duty……Driving defensively raises the e remainder of the show will help you apply CRM to your Labor Day trav

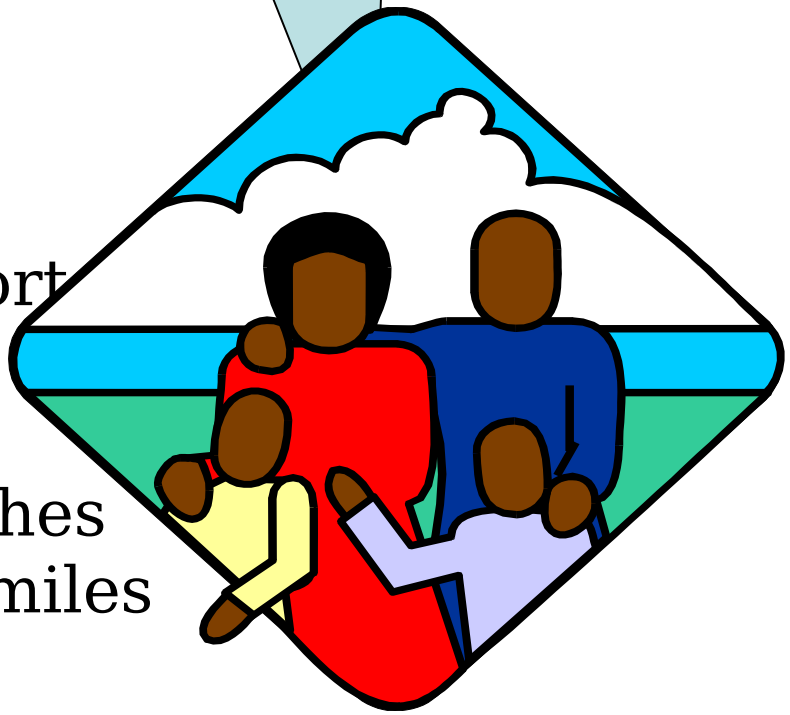
Always wear seat belts

CRM STEP I

Identify the hazard

What if you and your family don't buckle Up?!



Don't fall for the fatal "short trip" philosophy.

Two-thirds of all fatal crashes occur within less than 25 miles of the drivers home.

Don’t drink and drive

CRM STEP II

Assess Hazards

Judgment, perception, and reaction are so affected by relatively small amounts of alcohol that you might get into dangerous situations you would otherwise have avoided.

Don’t drive when sleepy or tired

CRM STEP III

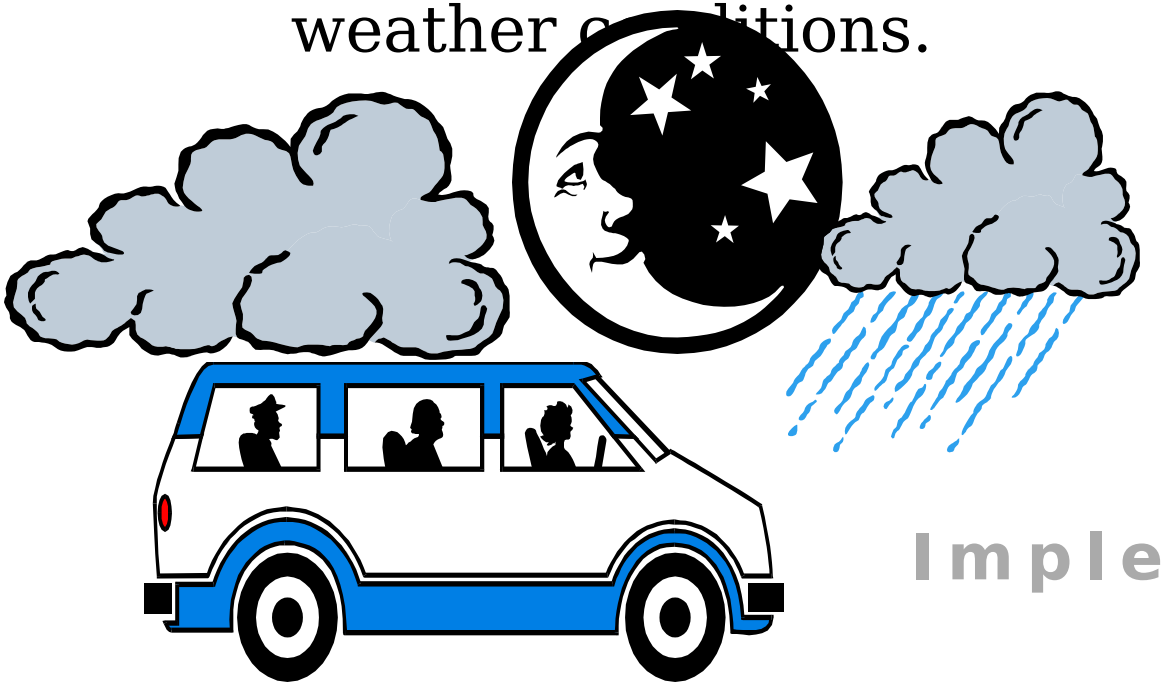
Develop Controls & Make Decisions

Plan your travels so that you can get adequate sleep. Pull off the road to a safe area and take a short nap if you feel drowsy.

THE ALTERNATIVE IS PRETTY GRIM!!!

Don’t drive after dark

If you can avoid it. More than half of all deaths occur during hours of darkness despite far less traffic. If you must drive, cut your speed and increase your awareness. The same goes for adverse weather conditions.



CRM STEP IV

Implement Controls

Be careful on hill crests and curves

For cars on the wrong side of the road. Approach with caution and enter a curve at reduced speed until you can gauge the sharpness of i

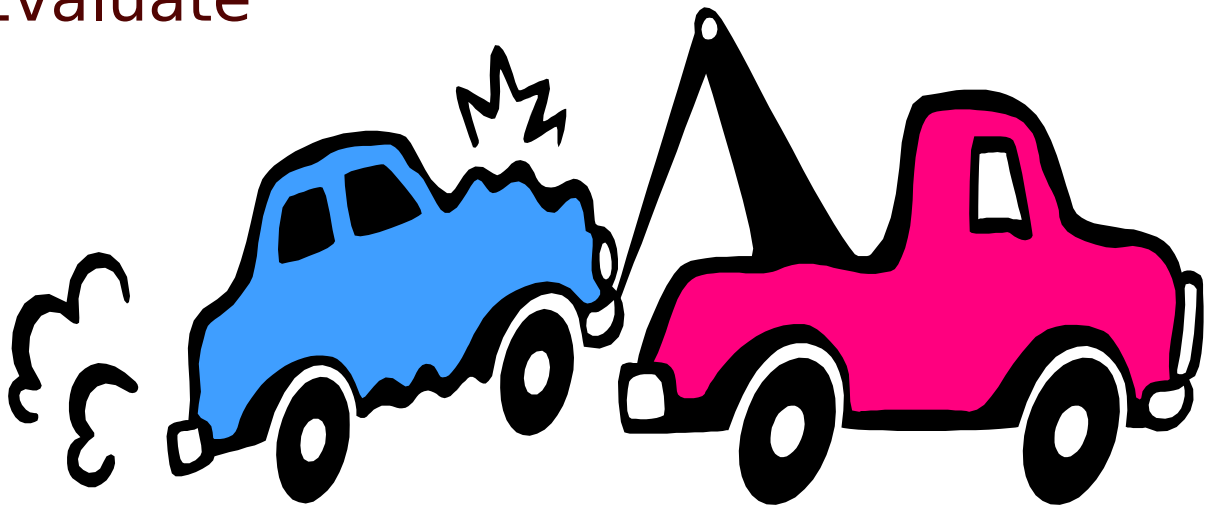
ORM ST

Don’t speed and constantly change lanes

Drive with the flow of traffic and keep a safe distance behind the car in front. Increase distances in adverse weather.

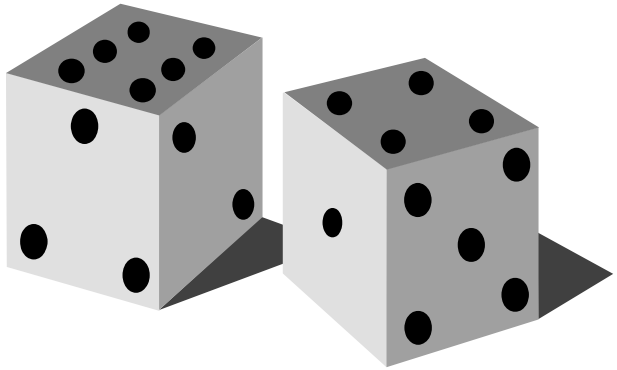
Supervise and Evaluate

CRM STEP V

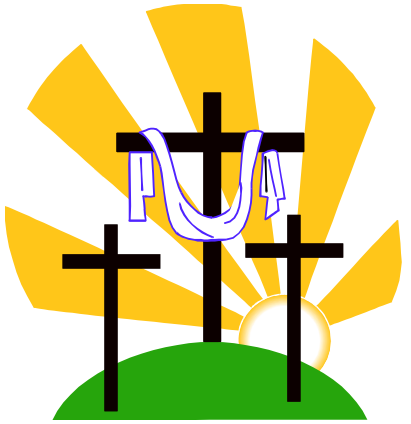


Practice courtesy and Be patience

Rushing in traffic is gambling seconds against lives. If there is any question of someone taking the right-of-way, give it up quickly. You will not get much return on your investment from others, but you shift those survival odds a little more in your favor.



=



In short, try not to drive under adverse conditions, stress, influence of drugs (prescription), or alcohol; don't rely upon the cooperation of other drivers; and Be prepared for anything.